

The MSU Campus Observatory, Abrams Planetarium and MSU graduate and undergraduate women in astronomy are hosting an event to celebrate girls and women in astronomy! This is part of the IAU initiative to highlight actions around the IAU Women and Girls in Astronomy Day!

Come join us in the Abrams Planetarium around 5:15 PM until 7PM, Sunday, February 24th (after the general show for the Abrams Planetarium) for hands on activities involving astronomy and to learn about some of the research done by graduate and undergraduate women at MSU. This event is for everyone, but especially middle-school and high-school girls who are interested in astronomy.
